For more than 75 years, we've been part of the communities we serve. Across rural municipalities and big cities, we help keep life running by delivering the energy people depend on.

We move over 30 per cent of the natural gas used across the continent, supporting homes, essential services and the industries that power everyday life.

Every day, our dedicated team proudly connects the world to the energy it needs.

Our work is rooted in community. We support local jobs, work with nearby businesses, and build lasting partnerships with municipalities and Indigenous communities—helping communities stay strong, connected and ready for the future.
